So you've got a new stove in your second home
Runs on gas but looks like oak
Hell, it even gives off smoke and glowing embers
There's a quilt hung on the wall reads "Home Sweet Home"
Below some wise word from Thoreau
And they call me "throwback" when I cry "Remember!"

(Chorus)

And soon these tools are artifacts
Endangered species left its tracks
Lock me up behind plastic glass in the city
'Cos there's no going back for me
This antique rustic's eulogy
Shall be sold as folk artistry
Such a pity...

But I'll never understand
Why they all only use those hands
To build a stead that will always stand in old time country
But settle for white rooms and hollow doors
Paper ceilings, padded floors
Luxury boxes where you're stored in what was country.

(Chorus Twice)
